

I don't think there's too much violence on tv. As a child, I probably watched cartoons more violent than today's primetime. I did however watch Kill Bill recently and the violence in that made me physically ill. Where to draw the line in-between Kill Bill and Seventh Heaven is hard to say. I recommend each individual to make choices based on their sensitivity to violence rather than trying to define a common law for all.